Royal Baking Powder is Superior to All Others in Strength and Purity.

Certified Extracts from the report of Hon. E. Miall, Commissioner, and Professor William Sawyer, F. R. S. C., Public Analyst, Inland Revenue Department, Ottawa, Canada, pages 4, 10, 11:

"Eight samples of baking powder have been analyzed; six were found to be adulterated, the proportion of adulterant varying from 30 to 60 per cent. The other two consisted of a mixture of bicarbonate of soda and pure cream of tartar without any adulterant."

"Royal. Result of analysis: contains cream of tartar, carbonate of soda; pure."

"Price's. Result of analysis: contains matter insoluble in water 34.16 per cent., consisting of starch and tartrate of lime; adulterated."

"The Royal Baking Powder is absolutely pure. It is undoubtedly the purest and most reliable baking powder offered to the public." "Dr. Henry A. Mott, Ph.D., U. S. Government Chemist."

MISS ELIZABETH VAN LEW

THE FULL STORY OF HER WORK AS A UNION SPY.

Miss Elizabeth Van Lew, Who Was Known to Her Friends for Her Work, Was Acknowledged to Be the Most Conspicuous of Southern Ladies. Nearly Approaching at the Fourth Corner—Her Mother Confederate—Her Own Sentiment.

Richmond, Va., July 13.—[Special.]—Interest in every quarter of the Southern city has been quickened by the settlement of the War Department—Grand View—ought to come, for persons in the Union of Miss Elizabeth Van Lew. The extraordinary story by this friend for her mother's and family, but the full story of her work as a Union spy has never been told, and much of it doubtless never will be. When the war was over the Confederate leaders turned their wrath to justify those in calling for "the Lee Avenged." "The Union War Department in Richmond." Such a bad term during the troubled years. To it had been easy to find the men whom Lincoln and Stanton sent through the lines to communicate with the Unionists at Richmond and get their views about freeing the slaves. The meeting with John Minor Botts and others of the anti-Secessionists was arranged at this house. Even before the 19th there might have been reason to suspect that an unprecedented activity existed underneath the Rebel Confederate organization in the neighborhood. What Pinkerton had before Richmond the scouts from the Army of the Potomac sent to inquire for and from Miss Van Lew, and Gen. Benjamin F. Butler was later informed by secret correspondence with her. When the Union commanders prepared to attack Fort Darling and needed a plan of the Rebel stronghold as the Union army approached Chesterfield to the south, from Miss Van Lew and Miss Elizabeth Van Lew, Louisa and Eliza, were educated. Miss Louisa was married, after the Bishop and who the woman was that was given such useful information to the enemies of the Confederacy. Those persons confined in Libby jail cannot be but grateful for the kindness shown by the servants of the house, and more when a flag was seen in the County every a score of them found a safe hiding place within its grounds.

The Van Lew household is a part of the white town. Because of its associations its owners have clung to it through many reverses and it was here that a Tribune correspondent found Miss Van Lew after Confederate History. It had appeared that the name would be forgotten in the South. Many of the Richmond people who were living when the Van Lew family was the greatest in the city have died, and the younger generation knows little of the history of the war. Mrs. Lizzie Crump, a daughter of Mayor Mayo, who was a contemporary of Miss Van Lew, and who was a member of the City Council during the war, is still living in Richmond, and she is the only person who can tell the story of the Van Lew family. Mrs. Crump is a woman of strong character, and she has a clear memory of the events of the war. She is a member of the Confederate Memorial Association, and is one of the most prominent women in the South. She is a woman of great wealth, and she is a member of the Confederate Memorial Association, and is one of the most prominent women in the South. She is a woman of great wealth, and she is a member of the Confederate Memorial Association, and is one of the most prominent women in the South.

THE LAKE-FRONT BATTLE

THE ARGUMENTS BEFORE JUDGE HORTON AT AN END.

John G. Jewett Closes His Case for the National Company—Attorney-General Hunt Makes a Telling Argument for the State and Mr. W. Butler Duke Pleads for an Honest Deal for the Rights of the City.

John G. Jewett, for the Illinois Central Railroad Company, opened the last day's argument in the Lake-Front matter at 10 o'clock yesterday morning by declaring that the ownership of the value of the property granted by the ordinance to the act of 1869 made by consent for the improvements were made without question, without reason of the time." He assumed the value of the Lake-Front, when the improvements under which value had been made, and endeavored to demonstrate that instead of being "one million dollars," its value would not exceed the cost of the improvements, which, according to the plans and estimates of Mr. Boutwell, was $2,000,000.

Mr. Jewett denied the truth of Gen. Thompson's premise that a private corporation had a right to build wharves along navigable water, and, in reply to all arguments of the contents used by the road in connection the privileges it claimed, answered that the Illinois Central Railroad Company was restricted to the use and manner of exporting property which made to sell to any other corporation or any person individual. It could purchase a certain section of land and build its road through that land and construct a right of way through that land without any to the ownership of the State. In road services of the road's charter a claim that in addition to the right of way the company was authorized to take such additional ground as was necessary to the proper arrangement of its terminal details, etc. And was connected with the construction and a reasonable term that the construction of a depot to such a track can as the Illinois Central do with a terminus on Chicago received more than the crowning of sufficient ground upon which to erect that depot and a mere right of way to and from it sufficient to accommodate a series of tracks. It could have laid upon which to build a large number of tracks and sufficient for the whole terminal purposes of the road. Mr. Jewett, in support of photographs, many of the which he said that this Legislature passed of ground lying east and west of the company's right of way in the neighborhood of Park row. Such deed were absolutely necessary for the proper

Mr. Jewett insisted that it was in the power of the Legislature to grant a right of way or railroad through the streets and public grounds of any city. Many streets and public grounds belong entirely within the limits of the State. The only limit to the power of the Legislature to grant a right of way over such property is that it must not be used for purposes inconsistent with the public use to which it is devoted. The Legislature of Illinois is authorized to grant a right of way over the streets of Chicago for railroad purposes, and the only question is whether the use to which the property is put is consistent with the public use to which it is devoted. The Legislature of Illinois is authorized to grant a right of way over the streets of Chicago for railroad purposes, and the only question is whether the use to which the property is put is consistent with the public use to which it is devoted.

Since the case of the Schollers Mfg. Co. there has been a great deal of talk and discussion about the power of the Legislature to grant a right of way over streets and public grounds of a city. Many streets and public grounds belong entirely within the limits of the State. The only limit to the power of the Legislature to grant a right of way over such property is that it must not be used for purposes inconsistent with the public use to which it is devoted. The Legislature of Illinois is authorized to grant a right of way over the streets of Chicago for railroad purposes, and the only question is whether the use to which the property is put is consistent with the public use to which it is devoted.

With the commencing of court in the afternoon began the argument of Attorney-General Hunt. He first invited the attention of the court to the provisions of the act of 1869, by which that act was originally passed, as amended by the Constitution of 1870. The Constitution required that no action to revoke a law except in cases where such power is reserved in the charter. This act does not have been in force for more than twenty years, and the Legislature has therefore no power to repeal the charter of the corporation. In addition to this the Legislature has no power to repeal the charter of the corporation. In addition to this the Legislature has no power to repeal the charter of the corporation.

Mr. Jewett contended further that it was within the power of a State to authorize a railroad company to build its road over the lands of the State, and that it was the duty of the State to do so. The Legislature of Illinois, in enacting the law of 1869, was acting in the interest of the State, and not in the interest of the railroad company. The Legislature of Illinois, in enacting the law of 1869, was acting in the interest of the State, and not in the interest of the railroad company.

Mr. Jewett contended further, that it was within the power of a State to authorize a railroad company to build its road over the lands of the State, and that it was the duty of the State to do so. The Legislature of Illinois, in enacting the law of 1869, was acting in the interest of the State, and not in the interest of the railroad company.
